As an HR and payroll professional in manufacturing, you’ve experienced a number of tectonic industry shifts in record time. Recent years have brought growth in manufacturing and created a massive economic push that has led to unprecedented expansion — creating job openings and opportunities for growth.

The problem? This increasing demand does not come without a host of issues leaving you scrambling to keep up. Not least among these is the skills gap in manufacturing, expected to contribute to potentially 2.4 million vacant jobs¹ by 2028, exacerbated by an overwhelming 78% of manufacturers anticipating a negative financial impact from the coronavirus pandemic.²

What’s more, seasonal work fluctuations, shifting regulations, supply chain disruptions, and the pressure to maximize productivity leaves you facing an uphill battle on multiple fronts.

The industry is experiencing the aftershock of growing pains. Fortunately, the solution to many of manufacturing’s biggest people-centric challenges is already here.

HR and payroll software provides a major resource to help manage manufacturers’ growing list of demands. Like the heavy equipment you might depend on to get the job done, HR and payroll solutions deliver unprecedented opportunities to meet and exceed growth targets, providing tools to:

• Stay abreast of regulatory requirements and mitigate risk
• Streamline compliance and training
• Fill open roles more quickly with skilled workers
• Enhance employee onboarding
• Create targeted training and development opportunities
• Modernize HR workflows for improved efficiency and accuracy
• Gain access to robust data for impactful decision making

In an industry where keeping up with regulations and closing skills gaps are mission-critical, you need solutions that are scalable, impactful, and effective so you can maintain your competitive edge.

Read on to learn more about how to find the best HR and payroll solutions for manufacturing.

Human resource (HR) and payroll solutions have the power to drive your organization forward. These solutions empower HR teams to focus on strategic initiatives like driving the culture and experience that propel improved results.

The right solution reduces manual work, increases productivity, and enhances employee engagement through greater automation, robust data analytics, and innovative technology.

Finding the solution for your organization can be time-consuming and overwhelming. You must understand the capabilities of HR and payroll solutions, discern between vendors, and gain management buy-in. This guide will walk you through:

Capabilities
What are the basic capabilities of HR and payroll solutions?

Factors
What questions should I ask to better assess my organization’s needs?

Features
What features should I consider when evaluating HR and payroll solutions?

Providers
What should I look for when evaluating providers?

Final Steps
How do I go about getting buy-in from key decision makers?
The Basics

Understanding the basic capabilities of HR and payroll solutions is the first step in the buying process.

With a single, intuitive platform, your organization can make strategic decisions, cultivate a modern workplace, and enhance employee engagement — all while making your life easier. HR and payroll providers describe their features and benefits differently, but there are some common capabilities to keep in mind:

- Human Resources
  Reduce the burden on HR by providing employees and managers enhanced access to information and leverage key data to identify trends to make strategic business decisions. Improve adoption of new initiatives by relying on metrics and gain the ability to track more effectively.

- Payroll
  Improve efficiency and simplify everyday tasks by streamlining core payroll processes, and empower employees with flexibility and access to information and even earned wages. Custom reporting and proactive features can help your organization go beyond those basic tasks while also saving you time and increasing accuracy.

- Time & Attendance
  Eliminate manual tracking and data entry while ensuring accuracy and compliance within a diverse workforce.

- Collaboration & Communication
  Give employees the ability to connect from anywhere, including giving critical feedback and recognizing peers. Encourage open dialogue and increase awareness of company initiatives with a centralized place for collaboration.
Benefits
Let employees enroll, edit, and manage benefit elections and leverage data analytics and reporting for strategic decision-making. Increase participation by adjusting offerings based on data and centralized notifications for open enrollment, all within the same platform where they view paychecks.

Talent Management
Engage, develop, and retain your employees with innovative tools that enhance the employee experience. Provide opportunities for engagement and development throughout the employee life cycle with on-demand, flexible learning options and ongoing performance feedback.

Recruitment
Streamline and standardize the recruitment process and track candidate status from application to onboarding, all while securing candidate data.

Data & Insights
Gain access to historical and real-time data and analytics to help you monitor key metrics and identify trends and insights for strategic decision-making.
What’s the size of your organization?
You want an HR and payroll solution that works for your current size but also scales with growth. Also keep in mind how your unique structure, locations of operation, and plans for growth impact your priorities for functionality and pricing.

What are the categories of workers who comprise your workforce?
On the shop floor, time is money. From hourly workers to full-timers, seasonal workers, and temporary employees, the composition of your workforce is diverse and often fluctuates with consumer demands. Consider solutions with features that help you keep up with all the moving parts of your firm, including clocking in/out and tracking hours (even using geofencing), overtime, sick leave and PTO, and more.

What are your compliance-related needs?
Safety and regulatory compliance are directives every manufacturer must adhere to. When it comes to keeping your people safe and healthy, following industry standards and maximizing efficiency, consider solutions that will help you stay on top of changing federal, state, and local legislative regulations, and industry regulations.
Do your workers need ways to access information other than via company computers and email?
Consider automated payroll and compliance processes employees can access remotely, preferably on mobile devices. For employees who do not have easy, regular access to computers and email, even while on site, it’s even more important they can access and update their own data from wherever they are.

What is your budget?
Even if you don’t have a specific number in mind, you should be aware of a few key components that influence price. Ask for details about add-on costs, like implementation support, ongoing support, customization, training (initial and ongoing), maintenance, technology upgrades, and deployment. Asking these questions up front helps reduce unexpected fees later on and helps ensure you know exactly what you’re spending.

What are your industry’s specific needs?
In manufacturing, there are a lot of moving parts — so it will be to your advantage to consider a multifaceted tool. Think: a solution that helps you track hours, overtime and PTO, quickly find and hire highly skilled workers, provide laser-focused onboarding and training, stay abreast of compliance and regulations, and adjust your workforce needs quickly to match market fluctuations.
Time to Compare
Learn how to tell the difference between solutions.

Now you’re ready to start researching your options. The differences between solutions lie in how they operate, how they integrate, and capabilities that uniquely match with your business needs. Consider the following:

Integration Capabilities
Look for solutions with an open architecture that let you leverage other business platforms you have in place without the hassle of disparate and siloed data, time-consuming management, or a poor user experience.

Tip: The fastest path to ROI is by enabling data to flow seamlessly to provide holistic insight and power strategic decisions.

Mobile Capabilities
Look for solutions built with mobile in mind.

Tip: Tools that help employees stay connected from anywhere maximize engagement and efficiency.

Usability
Look for solutions with a high user adoption rate and ease of use.

Tip: Improve usability and maximize efficiency by automating alerts and workflows.
Engagement
Look for solutions that offer employees the ability to collaborate and communicate with one another and the organization, as well as effective tracking of training, performance, and recognition within individual employee records.

Tip: A solution that offers a mobile app helps on-the-go employees stay connected with colleagues and the company, enriching their experience while also boosting efficiency.

Regulatory Compliance
Look for solutions that help you and your business stay compliant easily.

Tip: A solution with the ability to adjust quickly and report accurately as regulations change will help you stay in compliance, avoiding fees and related consequences.

Innovation
Look for solutions that continue to evolve and have strategies in place to keep up with changing customer needs.

Tip: A solution that takes into consideration client feedback, identifies industry trends, and stays on top of legislation updates will ultimately help you work smarter.
All Providers Are Not Equal

It's important to also evaluate where the solutions come from.

In addition to the array of solutions, consider the providers as you make your choice. Providers that offer a partnership (not just a product), go beyond implementation to walk alongside you as your needs and goals evolve over time. They take the time to deeply understand your unique business and help you make the most of your investment by advising and guiding you on much more than your daily “to-do” list. Consider the following:

Experience
Look for providers with extensive experience, including with companies in your industry and of your employee make-up and size, demonstrating familiarity and stability.

Tip: Ask for specific examples and access to references of clients with businesses similar to yours so you can learn first-hand about their experiences.

Culture
Look for providers who show they understand your people-focused goals and have achieved a positive, forward-thinking culture at their company.

Tip: A provider with a welcoming employee culture puts them in tune with you from the start, and employees at all levels will be more equipped to help you achieve your goals.

Adaptability
Look for providers that have the ability to support your current and future needs.

Tip: Providers with a clear strategy in place to innovate will be better prepared to scale with you.
Implementation
Look for solutions that provide both versatility and flexibility through configurable tools that can be scaled quickly.

Tip: A solution that can't be customized and scaled to fit multiple areas of the manufacturing HR function is not worth the investment in time, energy, and money. Look for solutions that are flexible and tailored to your specific industry and operations.

Customer Service
Look for providers who offer a high level of service, quick response rates, and a history of resolving issues effectively.

Tip: Don’t take their word for it. Be sure to read user reviews (eg, G2 or other verified user review sites) and ensure support is ongoing, beyond implementation.

Access to Support
Look for providers with a variety of ways to access support so you can get the help you need when you need it.

Tip: Educate yourself on the different ways you can get answers to questions, like chat, phone, email, and resource library.
Getting Across the Finish Line

The final steps involve your internal approval process and convincing key decision makers.

HR and payroll solutions have the power to make a significant and immediate impact on your business, but this won’t be easy to see for everyone. And a prolonged decision-making process means it will take even longer for you to start seeing the return on your investment.

As you work on getting buy-in from stakeholders, keep this guide handy so you can speak to the benefits that impact those individuals directly. Be prepared for those discussions to better your chances for agreement and speed up the approval process.

- Current pain points and lost opportunity
- Potential savings of time, effort, and money
- Clear, detailed plan of action
- Connection to business goals

You can take steps now to secure organization-wide buy-in by involving other teams early on. By giving others the chance to share concerns and get visibility into the decision-making process, you can improve adoption and reduce pushback later during implementation. Connect with IT, for example, to field questions on data security and identify resources for implementation.

The right HR and payroll solution can help the whole organization make strategic decisions, streamline manual processes, and engage employees. You’re one step closer to cultivating an engaged, high-performing, modern workplace.
